Eloquent Extract.

The following is an extract from the speech of Hon. George H. Pendleton at Flemingsburg, Ky.

I stood the other day in that beautiful cemetery which overlooks the valley of the Kentucky river and the capital of your State; I wandered among its beautiful trees and looked upon the inscriptions upon its many tombs. I saw there the heroes of civil strife—I mean civil, as distinguished from military—who had died with their harness on. I saw the graves of the immortal dead who had died in the Indian wars, in the war of 1812, in the war with Mexico, and those who had died in our late unhappy and wretched civil strife. Old and young, all bore testimony to the courage and valor and heroism and loyalty of Kentucky. There they lay altogether, those who had died fifty years ago and those who had died this year. Confederates and Federals lay side by side, their battles over, their struggles past—there they lie in the calm and silent repose of a common death. Their spirits had ascended upon eternal wings to perform in concurrent harmony the duties assigned them by the divine appointment of their Almighty Maker.

And why is it, gentlemen, that we, the living, feeling the necessity of harmony, must wait until a common death shall seize us, and until it shall be too late, before we agree to strike hands together, bury our differences at the foot of our country's altar, and swear that, by the Eternal God to her, and to her alone, we will be true forever?

One Great Need.

At a manufacturing establishment, the other day, one of the proprietors came in the counting room and filed a receipt just received from the Revenue Collector. He said: "We are running this concern for the benefit of the Federal Government. Nearly all we can save after paying rent and a small stipend for family expenses goes to the Government for taxes." That is the way it is in Europe, and that which causes so many to leave home and kindred and come to this country. So far as taxes are concerned there is no difference between our own and the European Governments. They tax everything on the earth and under it. We do the same. The worst of it is, that our Representatives in Congress act as if there was no public debt and no taxes. They are extravagant and profligate with the public money. They vote useless expenditures, and double their own salaries. Toil, toil, toil must pay these taxes and burdens. Every dollar voted by Congressmen for unnecessary objects and for the increase of their own pay, must be made up by those who purchase shirtings, calico, sugar, coffee, manufactured articles of any kind, agricultural products and newspapers, and who pay income tax. Why, when everything is burdened with tax, can not our Congressmen be economical? Why add to the patriotic burden by extravagant and profligate appropriations? Can we not have an honest and economical Congress? Let us try it.

For five years the Radicals proclaimed that opposition to the acts and decrees of the President, was disloyal. Then, the President had put the Constitution away in a pigeon-hole, and his will was the supreme law. At present, these same Radicals pronounce every body as "disloyal" who don't denounce the President, who has taken the Constitution from its pigeon-hole, unrolled it, and told the people that it and not his will is the supreme law.

A TEAR BIRD.—A lady of this city has a tear bird, which she is in the habit of letting out of its cage every day. One morning last week as it was picking up crumbs of bread on the carpet, her cat, who always before showed great kindness for the bird, seized it on a sudden and jumped with it in her mouth upon a table. The lady was much alarmed for the fate of her favorite, but on turning about, instantly discovered the cause. The door had been left open, and a strange cat had just come into the room? After turning it out, her own cat came down from her place of safety, and dropped the bird at the lady's feet without doing it the smallest injury.—[Princeton (Ill.) Patriot.]
